

An Illuminating Quote for Project Management

I know I'm not the only one who has replied, "Crazy Busy," when asked, "How are you?" And to my chagrin, I realize I am very busy but can't put my finger on exactly what I'm accomplishing. Fortunately, not all my busy days, weeks, or months are so disproportionately busy compared to my accomplishments, but I do have some.

Often, construction projects are busy and appear quite productive. Yet, looks can be deceiving. Too often, there is a great deal of wasted time and labor due to inadequate planning, including schedules, communications, and coordination among subcontractors. The effect of a lack of diligent planning is a whole lot of busyness and too many activities that don't meet finish dates.

Here is a great YouTube video that puts busyness and productivity in perspective. It offers excellent tips that apply to both business and individual productivity.

<https://youtu.be/OTy-Fy3M00k> Busy People vs Productive People

If your projects seem busier than they should be, Milestone Consultants could help. Contact us.